As some of you may have noticed an old feature for the galleries is back.

The notification system has been put back on for both the HM gallery and the Members Gallery.

What does this do?

Well if you want to watch a image for comments you can do that, if you want to know when only 2d images are posted you can do that, do you want to know when someone posts a image of a DC character, that is also possible.

How do you take advantage of this returning feature you ask, it is easy....

At the bottom of every gallery page is the notification options. and click the option that you want.

Remember if you want notifications for a certain type of art, like Manip's then you would need to set notifications in each subgallery inside the art style of your choice.

Enjoy
