Well I've not done a manip in quite some time, but I've been lurking and I think I needed to post on this one....

I'm totally with Hiss on this one. If you don't like my work, tell me why. If you don't, I'm just going to continue submitting images you don't like. Now of course some allowances must be made for personal tastes, we all know as artists we can't please everyone, but when I am creating fan art of any type my goal is to please the fans as much as possible.

Conversely if you are giving me an exceptionally high rating, I want to know why too. Perhaps I used some new technique that really paid off. If I don't know what you like about my work, I cannot continue to use and improve upon the techniques that ARE working well for the fan.
