I thought this was all about signing the stuff we put on Heromorph... so that's what I'll write about. I stopped signing when I realised when people stole or ripped off my work they would remove my signature anyway.

Also it sometimes distracted from the manip.

I used to hide the bunny, but now that Sam & Max is active again it doesn't feel right for me to use that character... and I can't be bothered creating an original character (or deciding which nickname to stick with).

And apart from all that, I don't think most viewers care who made the image while they're jerking off... viewers at Heromorph might, but they can see my name and stats under the image.
