And another legend Forrest J. Ackerman, who actually coined the term "Sci-Fi" and did more to promote the genres we all love than anyone alive, died on December 4th from heart failure at age 92.

Is it really heart failure at age 92? I think his heart just ran out of beats... And I hate to break it to you guys... but we are all dying... some just take longer than the rest. To be honest, I didn't even know Bettie was still alive. I don't know about her life... but like Hisstoryman said... she entertained millions. RIP!

well in his case I'd say yes it is heart failure as I recall he'd ben having issues on that sort for a good while now.
