Well, I think that if WB really wanted to put out a WW movie they would. But really is WW popular enough outside Fanboy territory for them to make a 100 mill + investment during this global economical times. I don't think so. I don't think WB thinks so either. So while it looks bad now for the future of a live action WW film, I do think that there is a really good chance of one occuring in the future.

For an old thread, this one's got some pretty good legs...know what I mean? I mean, no other threads' been here as long, either!

The earliest post we have RIGHT NOW on this thread is dated 21 Jan 2005...but, I'm thinking that it's older than that...2004, maybe? And, I agree with 'Hawk...it's an untested property, unless you count the TV series...and with the economy the way it is right now...no one's will ing to take a chance on it UNLESS they are guarrenteed a decent return on their investment. And I can't see that happening anytime soon, either...

SIGH

So, anyway, we can keep on hoping...AND keep on guessing as to who will get the lead role in that movie when and if it finally comes out.

Malin Akerman is my latest pick...anybody else got a new pick?
