As many of you have noticed this new section of the site is rather large and robust. It has a large number of features in it as well.

This can be used as a easy way to add your favorite artists as friends, have discussions in a group, share things like video and more.

I really think that everyone here will enjoy the new section.

That said you will notice that a large number of the links for profiles around the sites now take you to the new sections profiles. and some lead to your old profile pages.

Well the old profile pages also now have a button to take you to the new HM Networking profile pages. A complete rewrite of the core code of the site would be needed to change some of these links so they were left. Also you will still need access to your old account page to change your avatar.

We will be coming out with some instructions on how the new section works in the coming weeks, but feel free to explore, Make friends, tribes, and have fun with it.

Lets build a fantastic fan art community folks!!!
