Happy to help.

By the way, if you're looking for something that will last a while, your best bet is to go with the pen and nibs. You can get ink wells for $6, so it's better for your wallet in the long run to get a $6 well every 6 months than a new set of tech pens. As long as you buy good quality nibs, they can last for years -- I actually still have a couple I use that belonged to my Grandfather when he was in the art dept of the Canadian Navy during WWII, believe it or not.
