Forum: HM General Chit Chat
Topic: TAKING ME BACK WHERE I WAS
Subject: Re: TAKING ME BACK WHERE I WAS Posted by: Winterhawk
Posted on: 2009/4/8 9:11:55

the problem is something deep in the code of the site core programing. we use a modified version of a prgram called xoops. this is a problem with the core programing. it has been a problem with the last 20 versions of the software. Every once in a while a "fix" is made. but none have ever seemed to work. It happens when the server that the site is on is busy. The core programmers for xoops have been working on it for as long as I have been an admin here. I have tried 100's of different fixes availible but none have worked.
As has been mentioned 100's of times in the past the best way to get around it is to use firefox and click back then refresh the page when it happens.
or if on IE, refresh the comment page after it loads before typing.
Other then that, I got nothing. I know I have installed over 30 fixes in the past and some have reduced it and others have had zero effect. whenever I find a new fix, I will install that as well.