So I was at a small con on Sunday and decided to wear my silk Spider-Man shirt over my blue Superman tee as a way of showing that I [used to] like both companies. However I got more than one kidding comment about how crossing over the Big 2's images was like saying I'm both a Democrat and Republican. I knew they always had a rivalry but since when did I have to choose sides? Or is it just another small symptom of the divisive times we live in? Any thoughts?
