First of all, it's good to see you back, Cereal Killer. We missed you (and the missus). Second, the 'Flint' movies are awesome, almost more along the lines of Austin Powers than Bond, but definitely somewhere in between. However, I believe that the original saying is "in like Flynn", and refers to Errol Flynn, who was such a big star in his day that he was a shoo-in for any role he wanted. Ergo, "in like Flynn" means a sure thing. At least that's what I heard... I'm just chock full of useless trivia.
