That seems like a pretty tall order, not sure if someone could ever actually find something like that considering Marvel & DC alone have thousands, if not millions of characters alone. The best I've ever found with good enough lists are Comic Vine and Wikipedia which both have a large number of most of the characters from those two companies and others. The good thing about Wiki is that it usually has links to other specific wiki sites that only cover one company so if you link from there to those company specific wikis then you're bound to find even bigger lists.
