Mf,
I would say most people just don't care rather then are wrong. They probably have never even thought about it. For example, I do not care about baseball. Not even a little bit. I barely know the rules of the game, I do not know a single player that is currently playing the games name. I do not know any team names for sure. I just do not care. When someone tries to talk baseball to me, I do not know A single thing about it and don't want to know anything about it. So when they tell me Jimmy James has a rbi of some weird number, I just do not care and I tell the person I don't watch or like baseball. I think a lot of people are like that about comics. It doesn't interest them at all so they just do not care, now most people probably are not as blunt as me and will try to be friendly and talk to you about them, this will never end well
