looks like they are going to reboot spiderman and give a whole new cast and crew a new movie. I didn't think Spiderman movie was old enough to get a reboot.

I agree. When you basically use the same acting crew for 3 movies you've put the audience in a comfort zone where they not only recognize all the players but they feel a certain amount of kinship with the characters. Frankly I think Toby Maquire makes for a perfect Peter Parker and eventhough initially I hated Dunst as Mary Jane, she grew on me. I can understand to a small extent the need for a reboot since the 3rd movie was so bad, but all they need to do is take more time on the script and try to keep it more true to the comic. Does this now mean that they are going to re-tell his origin? Frankly I would hate that. A reboot of Venom would help [Topher Grace really sucked] and take the time to choose the right villain. Who do you think would make a perfect villain this time around?
