well I personally do not think a movie has to be a copy of the comic to be good. Take a look at the dark knight. I have read a lot of batman comics over the years and none of them were even close to this movie, They didn't even try to make it a copy of the comic. They took the characters and made a new story. I have no problem with this at all and really enjoyed the movie.

Now hollywood has done really good jobs like the dark knight and really bad jobs like catwoman. the thing that is important is the characters personality IMHO. I really don't care much. Much like the problem with star trek until they rebooted it is that trying to please the fan boys on a property that has been around with thousands of backstories and make everything fit into continuity while introducing it to the mass audience is an impossibility. That and some things work great on the page but do not work on screen.
