Okay! I'll admit this days I'm not often at this great site as I used to be... BUT what's the deal with people updating images just to keep them on the front page?

I remember that back in the days, there was an unwritten rule that if you updated an image, YOU also wrote what was the update and it should be a significant change to the image.

Now, every day I visit the galleries I have to scroll down and sometimes go back 2 or 3 pages to see what's new because some people keep updating with no other reason (to my eye, anyway) than to keep them in the front page.

This last week, I counted at least half the front page with the same images being updated with no actual change that could be seen.

Some days I arrive, look and see the same old images and don't even bother to log in.

Sorry, I just needed to vent.
