We can hope for the best, doesn't necessarily mean we'll get it. I, myself, have lowered my expectations when it comes to movies in the "superhero genre". Thus far, none of them seem to be getting it right. Sure, the effects are pretty amazing, but the stories, costumes and continuity all tend to suffer. Really, the only ones that haven't left a bad taste in my mouth are the Hellboy movies and the movie adaptation of "300" and "Sin City", though I have made it a point to collect them on DVD, all except Ang Lee's piece of crap attempt at Hulk.
