I would have to agree with thestarkiller. Maybe it is a statement along the lines of "This is what the Top Picts of the week Should look like or strive to be" and with that I agree as well. but this will bring us back to the ol Quality vs Quantity debate we have going already, so I am not going to even open that can of Worms.

I will glance through the thumb nails to see what images made the pick of the week out of the images I come to see posted every day. It did peek my interest as to why I was seeing these images. i will admit it is refreshing to see some of the classic greats that HM is known for, and for that I have folders set up to collect the art I like So I can look at it at any time, while still getting to see the new stuff.
