There's a reason I don't have cable anymore, and Flash Gordon (and all the shows mentioned here, for that matter), are a prime example. There are only 2 shows I watch anymore, and those are Smallville and Supernatural, which i can download, albeit an hour after airing, give or take.

I know Smallville had a few rocky seasons in the middle, but it's gotten infinitely better since Gough and Millar stepped down, and this current season is taking bigger strides towards where we all wanted the series to go than all other seasons combined. I recommend, if you haven't been following the show, that you read a synopsis of whatever seasons you missed and get going on this one. It's worth it this year to be a fan, finally.
