It makes my eyes roll to no end when comic fan's get ridiculously judgmental over an ENTIRE FILM based off of one photo.

I knew Catwoman, with Halle Berry, was going to suck when I saw one photo. So yeah, I can say that us "comic fans" can be a good judge of character. Let me think of the movies I knew would suck just by judging one photo. Daredevil... Electra... Hulk... the new Superman (OK, didn't suck... but wasn't worth the money it took to make it)... Supergirl... Batman and Robin (OK, all of those crappy ass Batman movies). It is easy to tell if a movie is going to suck a$$ when they cast Arnold as the Ice Man. Hell, the rubber suited "Thing" in Fantastic Four almost killed that movie.

But with that said, I will still give it a chance... if it ever happens.

Yeah. . .I remember the fan reaction to Begins when the first photo of Bat's dropped too. Everyone thought it was going to be soooo horrible. I think it's safe to say they were wrong.

All Im saying is that the costume is only one part of a character's "character." Any time a film version is being made, It's open to changes. It's just a reality that will never change.
