The 60's, a banner decade for cartoons:

The Impossibles (put at the top, cause I hope someone Manips them!)

The Flintstones

The Jetsons

Johnny Quest

The Herculoids

Space Ghost!

Fantastic Voyage

The Mighty Heroes

("Oh, the Mighty Heroes! Created by Ralph Bakshi!" "Who?" "Forget it, kid, before your time...")

Wacky Races

Underdog

Atom Ant

Space Kidettes

Secret Squirrel

The Pink Panther!

The 70's, intriguingly mine-able:

Challenge of the Superfriends

Josie and the Pussycats (C'mon, Josie and the Pussycats! It's a gimme!)

Josie and the Pussycats In Outer Space

The Shazam/Isis Hour

Journey To The Center Of The Earth

SeaLab 2020

Scooby Doo

The Freedom Force

Hong Kong Fooey

Arabian Knights (it was a cartoon on the Banana Splits)

Star Trek The Animated Adventures

Dare I say it, Schoolhouse Rock?

The 80's, and I'm sure this is the category where everyone will add stuff I miss:

He-Man
She-Ra
Thundercats
G.I. Joe
M.A.S.K.
Galaxy Rangers
Silverhawks
Defenders Of The Earth
Brave Starr
Jayce and the Wheeled Warriors
JEM
Flash Gordon
Transformers (?)
Gobots (?)

And, since the Challenge is multi-country, you can add Anime:

Robotech
Star Blazers (this was Star Cruiser Yamato in Japan)
Voltron

And the list goes on and on.

Feel free to chime in with any I've missed.
