good afternoon all,

I don't know who among us are Whovians, but I was on www.mania.com and I came across the following article:

www.mania.com/elizabeth-slade-19482011_article_129639.html

needless, to say I am saddened. when I started watching Doctor Who I at seven or eight years old, Tom Baker was the Doctor(4th) and Sarah Jane was the Companion. the two seemed to hit it off and have perfect chemistry. she was one of the few Companions who was actual an equal. her own show "The Sarah Jane Smith Adventures" was a clever offshoot of "Doctor Who" with a similiar sounding theme and her sonic lipstick as well as her own "Companions". so, thank you Lady Sladen and rest in peace.
