Hey Man, good post.

I know I don't socialize much here anymore. I do spend about 2 -3 hours a week on the site now. I used to be able to spend more time then that each day. But things for me have changed and responsibilities have changed. I still love Heromorph and probably always will. The one thing I find is that the site itself for me is all work now.

I spend most of my time deleting spam. deleting and banning spammer accounts and IP addresses. I spend probably 95% of my heromorph time trying to control the insane amount of spam posting we get.

The contact me sections for both the main site and the store are constantly getting spammed to death, I think I will probably just shut those off. since they generally get 100 spam for each legit response for the past couple of months anyway.

As for the store section. I think it was a mistake. It barely generates any income and is mostly a headache. It is extremely surprising to me how upset people get when you try to provide people free things.

Anyway enough of my complaining and excuses. Good to have you back Billy, I missed you and look forward to finding you in the shoutbox.
