

Forum: HeroMorph site questions & Suggestions

Topic: Site sugestions and updates

Subject: Site sugestions and updates

Posted by: ReddEra

Posted on: 2012/8/7 11:52:00

I wanted to ask if you all had someone who does updates and takes suggestions :D

Because I have a few suggestions. One being a complete re-organization of the site. Mostly the galleries because there is so many images on the site and they seem to be all hard to navigate to me. One being that there are too many options and a few galleries within the galleries that are mostly empty. So the main galleries could be more simplified and re-organized so it does not take years to see the older work and so that the newer work can still be found.

My other problem with HM has always been the member pages, it is difficult to get to them and when you do they are very plain. The images in each members gallery are only listed instead of having thumbnails and a lot of the information on each members site is not really necessary. It looks more like a form than an artists gallery. Also when a member comments on an image or thread there is no way to directly reply to that person, you have to write everything all down in one. Which has always made me less likely to respond.

That being said, does the site work off of a template that only has so many options? (With no insult to you all cause you guys are awesome)

I just noticed that there have been more changes to the site and some suggestions being made. So I thought I'd put in my two cents