I collected comics for over thirty years and have seen many changes some good some bad some truly horrible. The current crap..crop of comics coming out of both DC and Marvel have made me cut down my comic collecting from over 60 comics a month to 3. I've tried reading some of the current titles and I just don't like what I've read. Probably because most of the characters I grew up with and knew are now strangers to me. The New 52 sucks. I wish the Anti-Monitor would return and just destroy that universe. And Marvel now will be nothing new but probably MORE depressive stories about how one of Marvel's oldest and beloved characters is either Dead/ Gay/ Never existed/ or is actually a supervillain. I see a lot of mega-talented folks here at Heromorph that I bet could probably create better comics with far more respect to their own characters than what Marvel and DC have done in years.
