I recently got the chance to see "The Amazing Spiderman 2" (a whole 2 weeks before the U.S. release! Thank you pirates.) and I've got to say, this was MUCH better than the first film and any of the Raimi Spiderman films. The battles and effects were...dare I say? Amazing. And while I was aprehensive about Jamie Foxx having any part in this film, he did a damned good job, so..bravo Foxx, bravo. And the Spidey suit? OH MUCH MUCH BETTER!

Green Goblin was introduced in a creative way but SPOILER ALERT Norman Osborne was never the Goblin?? Dafuq? And although the Rhino mech suit was kinda cool with it's hydraulics and spotty wields, I feel that this character had more potential to be more than just web fodder in a metal suit. Not a whole lot of justice done to the character.

We also get a deeper look into the lives of the Parkers before the events of the film.

Gwen dies. Wanna take a guess how? Well it's pretty close to how it happens in the comics... location is a bit different, but... it happens. So this opens the doors for MJ to be introduced.
