For this engagement we will take the same base image and convert all elements in the image into a cartoon. On completion it should appear as if it's a frame from a comic book sans (that means without for those of you, like JrMcDeath, who don't understand big words), text or word balloons. Make the image itself convey the action.

No animation, no cutting it up into pieces to form some new image. All elements should remain where they were in the original image only transformed into a cartoon appearance. The only additions are on the main character in the image as she will need to be the costume of an established comic book character from Marvel or DC comics. You may also include power effects appropriate for that character.

How's that for weapons, Matrixblur?

Talk about loaded dice. You are the only artist I ever saw who could do that, and you gave several tutorials a little while ago. Excellent tutorials.

So...

What kind of odds am I getting on this one? 10 to 1? C'mon, throw me a bone here...
