I have an Idea for the April challenge.

Here is an Idea I had for an April Challenge, no it is not to poke fun at the new heralds of HM, but rather create a "Harold" of galactus.

Rules:

1. Go to <http://images.google.com/> and type in Harold, you have to use a picture that comes up as your base image.
2. No one that has been made in the past (or gender bending old ones either) can not be a published character.
3. Have Fun with it
4. The picture must include a trout
5. You have to make an original character that you created that has appeared in at least three published books.
6. You will be disqualified if you post during the month of April
7. All pictures not posted during the month of April will be disqualified.

I was thinking along the lines of brand spanking new characters, with new names, costumes etc but only if the characters have been around for a long time and are easily recognizable.

You have until the end of April to find a suitable Harold. Then Galactus will come and devourer us all! Suggested 2 elements. One, they would not be able to survive in space. Two, they would have to travel small distances in a very long amount of time. So probably they would need a walker or other device to help them move around.

As to the rest, that is up to you but make sure you only follow the guidelines. Be creative, have fun, and show us what a 'cosmic' hero looks like!!!

You have to include a bio, but it can't be of the character in the picture, you must include a bio of one of the characters distant relatives like his uncle frank.

Oh and you can't use the color green. No green at all.

(This was a sarcastic post trying to shed some humor on how complicated the challenges have gotten, I am probably the only one finding this really funny
