I like it too but it's not a super-villain/hero origin in any way IMHO...

But I also think it's a good thing all the attention is getting and no one can deny that it's a refreshing look at the character, although the "real" Joker is insane, completely bananas without the need to justify why he does what he does.

We just know he's the Jokes and no other explanation is required.

And that's one thing that made not believe the movie Jokes is the real deal. And I hope they keep it as it is and due to the success of the Joker, don't start bringing Batman and the rest of the comics universe into it..

We already have a internet theory about Bruce running around that I hope no director think about it.. no matter how interesting could be in a movie...

But that's me and my 2cents...
